Much Stress Laid on Traditional Friendships-Russian Sovereign Going to Rome and to See Fallieres-Aussia Explains and Regrets Woodburn Shots.

Special Cable Despatches to THE SUN. St. Petersburg, June 18.—The Kaiser bade farewell to the Czar this evening and started for home. Following is the account of the firing on the British steamship Woodburn issued by an official news agency: "On Wednesday evening a vessel loaded with timber bound for England was steaming through the channel where the imperial squadron was lying. On account of this offence against the prescribed regulations she was ordered to heave to. As this order was disregarded the guard-

"I take this opportunity to assure your Majesty that I cherish the sincere and traditional hearty friendship and mutual trust which have always united our two houses and the cultivation of which I strongly desire, not merely as a pledge of good relations between our countries, but as a guarantee also of general

a new and valuable confirmation of the close and sincere friendship uniting the two houses and the two governments of Germany and Russia. It is a fresh confirmation of the traditional relationship, cordial friendship and confidence which equally correspond to the manifold interests and thoroughly peaceful sentiments existing between our countries and our Governments."

Late this afternoon Foreign Secretary Schon of Germany had a conversation of considerable length with Foreign Minister Isvolsky and Premier Stolypin of Russia. Earlier in the day the Kaiser decorated Stolypin with the Order of Merit of the Prussian Crown and conferred upon Isvolsky the Grand Cross of the Red Eagle.

The St. Petersburg newspapers have not published a word about the meeting of the Emperors nor even about the Kaiser's arrival at Bjorko.

"It is naturally with a feeling of pride that we accept these tokens, and I wish to thank the people of the United States. of Ohio and of Dayton. It is sometimes said inventors usually do not receive the sympathy and encouragement which is their due. This cannot be said of us. Even in the infancy of our work we received offers of financial assistance from people who could have no hope of reward.

to complain of their lack of substantial sympathy, yet I have no doubt that if $1,000,000 would bring another Shake-speare or a Tennyson the money would be forthcoming in this country within five minutes. If poets and inventors do not get their dues it is rather because the world is unaware of their needs than because of indifference.

The presentation was made within sight of the big field in which the aviators made their early experiments and not made their early experiments and not far from their workshop, once little, now grown into a plant of considerable size.
Following the acceptance the venerable

A great pageant of floats followed, representing the development of transportation. An Indian runner led the line of ox carf, wagon, locomotive, bicycle and automobile, a Wright aeroplane in the rear.

The celebration seems to have halted industry in Dayton. The appearance of the streets makes believable the proud declaration that all Dayton is 'laying off' to help honor the Dayton inventors. But the Wrights are not "laying off," however. They have stolen from the ceremonies to lather in the workshop. To-day they worked several hours, packing the machine which is to be tested by them at Fort Myer, beginning Monday. They almost ran to the workshop between the events to-day and were in the shop again as dusk fell after the medal presentation. The crowd saw a real example of one means of transportation. girls graduating classes in the public schools of Richmond for nearly thirty years. She retired on a pension on entation of the gold medals authorized February 1, 1901. Prior to May 3, 1900, by Congress, the diamond studded Ohio the pay of teachers in the Staten Island schools had been fixed by a yearly contract made between the teachers and the borough boards. In 1900 the Board of Education passed an ordinance fixing a schedule of pay.

The pay of the plaintiff, according to that schedule, was $1,440 a year. Miss Moore had been receiving $1.320 a year and had signed the payroll for that amount in the year in which the Board of Education. and had signed the payroll for that amount in the year in which the Board of Education's payroll went into effect. When she retired her pension was fixed at half the amount she had been receiving, that is, $660 a year. She brought suit two years ago to recover the difference between $1,440 and $1,320 for the year her contract was signed and also to have her pension made half of the higher salary.

John E. O'Brien, her attorney, brought suit in the municipal courts of Manhattan and the case was fought through the
